BREWERY IMPORTS STRIKE BREAKERS

Alexandria Company Believes Backbone of Walkout Has Been Broken.

ALEXANDRIA, Jan. 18.—With the arrival of a number of brewers and other skilled employes from New York last night and the employment of helpers from this city as firemen, bottlers and drivers, work in all departments of the Robert Portner Brewing Company was resumed this morning, and the backbone of the strike, which commenced last Tuesday, is believed to have been broken. It is reported that several of the strikers have applied for work, but the management, it is said, will only take them back with the understanding that hereafter the brewery would be run as an "open shop." The strikers, more than 100 in number, have made no effort to stop the new men from going to work, and there has been no disorder.

PHOTOPLAYS AND PHOTOPLAYERS

By GARDNER MACK.

Talked Her Way Into a Job and Became a Star Almost At Once

Attention was called a day or two ago, to the number of actors and actresses who have made good in motion pictures after brief careers on the stage and have gained fame that many of the greatest stars of the legitimate theater work years without attaining. From time to time opportunity has been seized to give short sketches of the careers of these people. Up to the present time the only persons who have been so described have been men and women who had the prestige of stage experience to recommend them to the photoplay directors. It has been stated there are several important stars of the screen who have never done anything else. One of these is Norma Talimadge, the very versatile young woman of the Vitagraph forces who has probably played a greater variety of characters in her short experience than any of her associates. Miss Talimadge became a photoplayer without experience of any sort as an actress. And she is one of the few really capable actresses who made good practically in a day. Our usual informant on such matters, Miss Edna Wright, has supplied us with the following account of how Miss Talimadge became a photoplayer and what she has done since becoming one.

"She was born in Brooklyn in 1895, and it was while attending the high school that she begged her mother to allow her to apply for a 'job' at the Vitagraph studios, which were located near her home. Just because she thought nothing would ever come of the attempt, Mrs. Talmadge gave her consent, and one day after school, Miss Norma sought Director General Spedon. Singling her out from about sixty other girls, he gave her the opportunity to tell him what she thought she could do. Mr. Spedon listened to the little girl's story, with the consequence that at the conclusion of the interview, she had a 'job.' Although she had never had any stage experience, it was not long before the company realized that, in the little school girl lay hidden talent, which they soon allowed her to develop. Mr. Spedon has never regretted engaging the girl who so eagerly talked her way into his office, for during the short period that she has been in the pictures, Miss Talmadge has become a leading lady of one of the largest companies in the film industry. So is known to many photoplaying patrons as 'The Girl With a Thousand Expressions,' and this title is very appropriate, as there is probably no other motion picture actress with quite so many varied expressions.

"Miss Norma is a woman in miniature, measuring barely over five feet; she has large dark brown eyes, a mass of brown curls, dimples of deepest cut, and these, added to pink cheeks, the notorious 'Talmadge' smile, make a striking personality. In many of the recent productions opportunity has been afforded for Miss Talmadge to prove her ability as an emotional actress. Whether the part is that of a young girl or an old lady, with the aid of her make-up, and by "feeling" the part, she can be depended upon to give an unusual performance. Some times "feeling" her part so intensely has caused the tears to roll down her cheeks, and after having reached a dramatic point she often collapses physically, so great is the strain.

"Outside of the studio, picture patrons would find their favorite enjoying the same things that they themselves do. She is very fond of horseback riding, and with the other members of the company takes long cantera through the country, and she now prides herself on being able to swim five feet without calling for help. Often during the summer, when not needed at the studio, she runs down to Rockaway with her associates, and here they indulge in the briny. A fondness for chocolate sodas and dancing are two more "recreations" that invite Miss Talmadge, when she is not busy."

LOCAL OPTION ISSUE ARISING IN JERSEY

Opposition Lessens as Rural Representatives Strongly Advocate Prohibition.

TRENTON, Jan. 18.—There is evidence here that the fight for local option will make more progress this time than for fifteen years past, though the man who would assert that it has a chance of passing would indeed be considered almost foolhardy.

Both parties are inclined to look upon the local option movement with more tolerance, and were it not for the fact that New Jersey has such heavy delegations from populous counties where municipalities are so large, the chance of passing a local option bill at this session could be set down as almost assured.

With things rather coming their way, the Republicans feel that they cannot fight the local option people, and at the same time they are worried at the position of the saloon men should the Republican party come out in favor of such a proposition.

The Democrats, on the other hand, are inclined toward local option in the smaller counties. They are almost rabid on it in Hunterdon and some of the other lesser counties like Salem and Gloucester, and were it not for the large delegation from Hudson county this might be taken up as a good political proposition.

With these elements on hand, there does not appear the same opposition to local option in the Democratic camp as there existed some time ago. This has encouraged some of the Republicans in the belief that many persons in that party would be content to see local option. It is considered a dangerous proposition, like "monkeying with the tariff," but things have so decidedly changed that local option may have a chance in New Jersey some time in the not distant future.

The local option bill of Senator Gaunt of Gloucester will be opposed by the labor men of the State. They contend it is the personal privilege of each man to drink or not to drink, as he sees fit. The matter will be considered at a conference of the executive board of the New Jersey State Federation of Labor at Newark on Saturday.

LOCAL AND NEW YORK FINANCIAL NEWS

TRADING ON 'CHANGE HAS GOOD VOLUME

Bond List Active, Stock Sales Limited to Odd Lots—Reports Are Optimistic.

Trading on the Washington Stock Exchange today continued in good volume, with the major portion of the transactions confined to the bond list. The largest block of bonds disposed of consisted of $4,000 worth of Riggs Realty (short) 5s at 100, the bid price. On sale of $2,000 worth of Potomac Electric Power consolidated 5s the bonds advanced from 99¼ to 99⅝. A Potomac Electric first 5 was sold at 103⅜. The other bond sales included a $500 Washington Gas 5 at 103½; a $500 Capital Traction 5 at 107, and a $1,000 Washington Railway and Electric 4 at 81¼.

The stock sales were limited to odd lot transactions. A block of twenty shares of Washington Loan and Trust stock brought 225; the bid quotation. Capital Traction continued to sell at the minimum price of 95, twelve shares bring that figure. The only other sale recorded was ten shares of Washington Railway and Electric common at 85.

Arthur G. Plant, of A. G. Plant & Co., bankers and brokers, having just returned from New York, reports the sentiment in Wall Street as very optimistic. The operations now being conducted on the stock market, Mr. Plant says, are largely confined to "big" interests, the leaders of which are predicting a general and rather rapid improvement in all lines of industry. That the public is interested in the securities market, he added, New York operatoras ay is evidenced by the ever-increasing number of inquiries concerning stocks and bonds. At present the smaller investors are seeking principally bonds and the more conservative dividend paying stocks, but trading in the more speculative issues, New York traders say, is steadily increasing.

RESERVE BOARD TO HAVE SPECIAL FUND

Action Ordered Because of Attorney Geenral's Ruling Ordering Regular Audit.

Creation of a special fund in the United States Treasury to handle the moneys of the Federal Reserve Board, raised by assessment against the various banks belonging to the Federal reserve system, was ordered by Comptroller of the Treasury Downey today.

This action was taken in response to an inquiry of Governor Hamlin, of the board, as to how the moneys were to be handled, in view of the opinion of the Attorney General that the Federal Reserve Board was an independent Government bureau, and that its expenditures should be audited.

Comptroller Downey ruled today that all moneys collected by assessment should be deposited in the Treasury in a special fund created for that purpose. All moneys held should be collected and deposited by a bonded fiscal officer of the board. Disbursement, he said, should be made by check from a fund deposited by the Treasurer from the special fund.

All accounts, the Comptroller says, should be submitted quarterly, or, possible, monthly to the auditor for the State and other departments. All vouchers and payrolls should be approved by the governor of the board, and all transactions to date stated in one account for the auditor.

Convincing Testimonial.

A young man who had recently assumed the managership of a popular typewriting concern in a certain city decided to visit several of his new customers and obtain their opinion of the machine, that he might show the company just how he was succeeding, says Everybody's.

"How do you like your new typewriter?" he asked the first customer he visited.

"It's immense!" enthusiastically replied the man. "Really, I wonder how I ever got along without it!"

"That's fine!" said the young fellow, much pleased. "Would you be willing to give me a little testimonial to that effect?"

"Why, certainly I will," said the man, taking a seat at the machine. "I'll do it gladly." And rolling up his sleeves, he pounded out the following:

"afted Using thee automatig Bavk-action atype writ,er for3 three emonths as a H Over. I unhealtatingly pro- no nce it be al ad even more than thee Manufacturers claim? for it. Arranged With Enemy.

There's a good story going the rounds just now that shows how Austria was deprived of one of her fighting men.

A visitor to a West End restaurant in London, being waited on by a particularly tall and fine-looking waiter with a foreign accent, asked the man his nationality.

"Oh, I'm a Hungarian," was the reply.

"How comes it, then, that a big, strong fellow like you is not in the firing line?" asked the visitor.

"Well, sir, it's like this," replied the knight of the napkin, pointing to a brother waiter a few tables off, "you see that man? Well, he's a Serb, and we have yat you call paired."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Soon he looked up and said: "Aunt Emmy, you have lots better dinners than this, don't you? Guess I'll come on Sunday next time."—Indianapolis News.

A Close Shot.

It was during a golf game in Scotland. The first player who drove off was very bow-legged. The second player, unmindful that his opponent was directly in front of him, struck the ball and it whizzed between his opponent's legs.

"Hoot, mon," said the bow-legged one in anger, "that's nae golf!"

"Aweel," said his opponent complacently, "'tis nae golf 'tis gude croquet."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Trade Board May Fail, Is White House Fear

Fear was expressed in Administration circles today that owing to the delay of the President in sending to the Senate the nominations for the new Federal interstate trade commission, the nominations might not be confirmed before the adjournment of the present session. The attention of White House officials was called today to the fact that the session is now half over, with the Senate still filibustering against the ship purchase bill.

Should an extra session be required to put through the ship bill and the nominations to the trade commission, there is a strong prospect that the President might abandon his contemplated trip to the Canal Zone in connection with the formal opening of the canal.

It is stated that the President is still uncertain about several of the names he has under consideration for the trade board.

New Yorkers Come Here To See Huge School Map

Fourteen thousand small incandescents, each indicating an institution of learning in the State of New York, flashed out from the big relief or topography map of the Empire State today before several visitors connected with the board of education of New York, who made a special trip to Washington to inspect the map before its shipment to the Panama exhibition. The map was on exhibition in the second floor of the Alabama garage on N street, between Ninth and Tenth northwest.

It measures 30x40 feet, and has been in the course of construction for a year. It is in twenty sections, and was constructed at a cost of $25,000. It is composed of several ingredients, including the pulp of some money and bonds destroyed by the Government.

Heading the New York delegation was Dr. John H. Finley, commissioner of education. Others were Dr. A. S. Downing, assistant commissioner of higher education, and Norman E. Mack, chairman of the New York exhibit committee for the Panama Pacific exposition. Washington educators also inspected the map.

The map was made by the Howell's Microcosm, which also made a replica of the New York State educational building at Albany.
